

Augmentity International Awarded Disaster Planning Contract

ATLANTA, Ga, - November 28, 2007 –

A large Caribbean government has awarded Augmentity International an on-going contract to audit and re-engineer their telecommunications infrastructure.

Under the contract, Augmentity International will provide technical assistance to strengthen the emergency communications network. With the annual threat of hurricane damage, disaster planning and fail-safe communications are critical to protecting tourism and the residents.

“We are pleased that the government leaders recognized our substantial disaster recovery experience and telecommunications background.” said David B. Hilbish, president of Augmentity.

Initial audit and re-design projects will take place over the next 6-18 months.
