Augmentity Joins VMware's Enterprise Program

ATLANTA, GA. – Sept 9, 2008 – Augmentity, a leading provider of enterprise computer technology solutions, today announced it joined VMware's Enterprise Partner Program. VMware is the leading provider of virtualization software with over 50% market share and a diverse client base. This certification shows Augmentity's in-depth knowledge of VMware products and solutions and commitment to VMware technical expertise.

As a VMware Enterprise Partner, the Augmentity technical sales professionals possess a thorough knowledge of virtualization solutions used to solve complex business problems. The training requirements of the VMware Enterprise program assures that Augmentity technical professionals have the capabilities to design solutions using VMware products, and offer successful delivery of virtualized environments.

“The addition of VMware further enhances our virtualization practice and allows Augmentity to offer greater flexibility to our customers with a more well-rounded, total IT solution,” said Travis Gonzales, vice president, south east at Augmentity.

VMware products enable server consolidation, reduce server quantities and facilitate eco-friendly computing. In addition, Augmentity will utilize the virtualization capabilities of VMware to expand its Data Center Greening practice, by reducing overall server count in large data centers.
